INTRODUCTION

The President of the Republic of Uzbekistan, Shavkat Mirziyoyev, in the book "Humanity, goodness and creativity are the main foundations of our national idea" set the task of educating the young generation based on national values in our modern education process.

National values are a set of qualities, customs and cultural traditions of our people that have been practiced since time immemorial. In this sense, in the process of education, it is necessary to form the following qualities in primary school students.

- Appreciation of the person
- Loving the country
- Respect others
- Respecting and prioritizing the interests of others
- Hard work

These customs are ingrained in the minds of our people. In the family, these qualities are appreciated and respected by the elders as an example. The task of us teachers is to further refine and strengthen these values in the process of education.

Primary school students should embody the following customs typical of our people:

- living as a community
- respect the neighbor
- sharing goodness
- not to take revenge on wealth
- live by honest work
- to be the owner of a profession or trade

These customs are valued both in the past and in the present. Regardless of their living conditions, they should be familiar with the following cultural lifestyle traditions:

- Always walk cleanly, dress cleanly and observe cleanliness
- providing material and moral support to the needy
- what you see in yourself, see in others
- to treat people equally in good and bad days.
- consider the family sacred

These values lead to the development of the national spirit in the minds of students and the emergence of the concept of appreciation.

Values are divided into two types.

1. National values
2. Universal values.

If national values are a set of qualities characteristic of this nation, as we mentioned above:

Universal values are a set of approaches accepted by others after the experience of the peoples living in the world. For this reason, the leader of our time emphasizes the need to pay great attention to universal values. As universal human values:

- peacefulness
- tolerance
- to preserve nature
- brotherhood

Students get acquainted with these concepts in newly created textbooks and begin to apply these qualities in practice. In particular, in the 1st grade "Education" textbook, in the "Bag'rikeng yurtim" chapter, students have information about our neighboring countries and sister countries, and we respect them regardless of their origin and religion. is given to students.

The effectiveness of educating primary school students based on national and universal values will be evaluated at the next stage. For this, it is necessary for a primary school teacher to know national values, to be aware of universal values and to embody these values.

CONCLUSION

Elementary school students are like new sprouts. The way we take care of the sprout, it will grow and grow. That's why we, teachers, parents, and the community, all of us should be a role model in taking care of these seedlings. To be an example, we work based on the rich heritage and experience left by our ancestors.

Our country is hospitable, at the same time 130 nationalities and peoples live in our country, we need to respect them and learn to respect ourselves.
