INTRODUCTION

Cultural change can have many causes, including the environment, inventions, and contact with other cultures. Cultural transmission is attached with cultural acculturation, institutionalized and universal process.

Contact between cultures can also result in acculturation. Acculturation has different meanings, but in this context refers to replacement of the traits of one culture with support the other correlated things in society. Cultural activities are institutionalized, the focus on institutional settings leads to the investigation "of activities in the cultural sector, conceived as historically evolved societal forms of organizing the conception, production, distribution, propagation, interpretation, reception, conservation and maintenance of specific cultural goods.

Cultural transmission is a universal process. It has various aspects and factors which are directly or indirectly present in society. Some concepts are similar to the cultural transmission process like cultural formation, culture and civilization, race and culture, religion, ethnicity and culture with multicultural in classroom.

While pursuing the study of culture, it has been defined in a various ways. Culture gives the place to beliefs, values, and meanings that bind a group of people together. Culture is everything for society like direction, platform, guideline and path. Culture is a shared symbol, system, thoughts and thinking of each and every individual.

Therefore, an education system is the reproductive organ of every culture. Cultural transmission directly involved in education system.
